I started listening to audio books one day when I just got tired of listening to music. I know that may sound strange... but I was annoyed with the radio stations always playing the same songs, my play list that I've listen to a thousand times, it all got boring and dull. Then I turned to audible. I was hooked right away. It's amazing how it can make a 4 hour drive seem like only a 1 hour drive (that I make often to visit family.) I randomly realized one day that audible has "stats" page that shows listening time. My current total listening time is 24 days, 8hrs and 38mins. It is amazing to realize that if I wasn't listening to books... those 584 hours would have just been spent listening mindlessly to repeat music. Now, that time has been spent listening to new adventures and stories that I can have in depth discussions with friends about. My favorite narrator is Michael Kramer. I have been trying to listen to all of Brandon Sanderson's books but I took a break when I found out that The Wheel of Time was being made into a TV show. I am currently on book 3 in the series. I can't wait for book 4 of The Stormlight Archives to come out and the next book for Mistborn! Thank you Michael and Kate for the work that you do. You help bring the stories to life in an amazing way.
